

ABOUT CQ RESCUE

CQ Rescue Health Services is a subsidiary organisation of Central Queensland Helicopter Rescue Service (CQ Rescue) and all proceeds from drug and alcohol testing are used to fund the region's rescue helicopter.

CQ Rescue Health Services was established in 2010 and has since fostered very strong partnerships with organisations and businesses throughout Mackay, the Bowen Basin and Whitsundays.

Since 1996, CQ Rescue's helicopter and crew has provided rapid response aeromedical care whenever, wherever there has been a call for help across this vast region.

Our community-funded rescue helicopter provides peace of mind to people living, working and visiting Central and North Queensland. Our blue and yellow helicopter is synonymous with saving lives and plays an important role in emergency services each and every day in this region. The RACQ CQ Rescue crew's rapid response to a call for assistance makes a difference to hundreds of lives every year and has given many a second chance at life.

"The service provided by CQ Rescue for our requirements for drug and alcohol testing on site has been superb. In an environment that heavily relies on stringent testing and flexibility to provide a safe 24 hour operation, the team are always available and provide us with a professional service and an exceptional response to our needs."

“We highly recommend CQ Rescue Health Services. Working on mine sites, we are required to provide testing at short notice. The team are always helpful and a pleasure to deal with. The fact that all of the profits go directly to help fund the rescue chopper which in turn helps the community, why would you use anyone else?”
